FINAL CONFERENCE

Inspiring speeches at the most magical location
We can waste many words to this, but the quotes speak for themselves.

"Every feature is a valuable feature, don't destroy it, embrace it, protect it, it's gonna make you proud one day"

Al Pacino, quoted by Sebi Craciun during the Final Conference, and we couldn't agree more. Not only does this quote exactly capture what YoPeVa aims for, it is quoted by young person with value.

"My dream is to become doctor. Thanks to this opportunity I have the hope to achieve the dream. This opportunity gave me the idea of concurring the world"

Allana Vitória Ferreira Dos Santos, a girl that joined the Brazilian Jovem Aprendiz programme

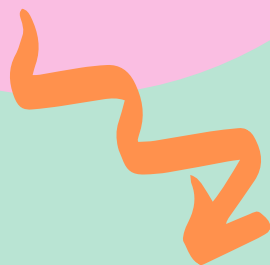

"Accompanying young people in their journey to labour, as part of their personal development process and transition to adult life, is of vital importance"

Jordi Solé, member of European Parliament

International Workshop

While some of us are still recovering from the success of the Final Conference, we will rumble on to succeed further success. We have invited different peers and stakeholders from all partner countries to exchange and engage in an international discussion on how to support NEETS. Everyone will share their experiences, knowledge and input, which can be used to enhance YoPeVa's opportunities. We will tell you more about this in January!

Follow our socials and keep an eye on our website, more information on both the National Implementation Plan and the International Workshop will be shared soon!

National Implementation Plans

We have analysed at what level the YoPeVa model is realistically deployable in each local context and what the nature of its implementation should be. Each partner of the consortium involved different stakeholders, making their profiles multiple and different in each country.

These analyses are formed together in National Implementation Plans, which provide information about implementing the YoPeVa model at a local, regional and national level of the consortium partner countries. It examined for example the necessary financial resources, alignment with policies on both local as EU level and issues and challenges.
